Passage One

Questions 21 to 25 are based on the following passage.

Hi. My name is Dina. I'm a black Canadian. When I was two-and-a-half years old I was adopted by a white couple who already had two biological sons. I am grateful for my parents and two brothers but growing up was sometimes difficult.

Nearly everyone living in our neighborhood was white. Children sometimes teased me and called me names because I was black...because I was different... and because I didn't know who my biological parents were.

Adults could also be cruel. Sometimes they would refuse to acknowledge my parents as my real parents. It was difficult to understand such an attitude but as I grew older I began to realize that they simply didn't understand that my parents had CHOSEN to raise me. I also realized that being an adopted child didn't make my own family less real or less valuable.

Now that I am older, I can see that I was lucky to be adopted. In North America, most couples who adopt children want newborn babies. When a child is older than two or three, it becomes more difficult for him or her to be adopted.

Children who cannot find parents to adopt them are placed in foster (收养) homes. Foster children do not become legal members of the family and may live with several different families while they are growing up.

Fortunately this didn't happen to me. As an adopted child, I grew up as part of a family and with the same security as a child born to the family. My parents are my parents and my brothers are my brothers. I can't imagine calling anyone else "mother" and "father" or "brother". "Adoption" is a word for outsiders.

21. Dina's parents and brothers treat her _____.

- A) very well B) cruelly C) badly D) coldly

22. "Call me names" in Para. 2 means _____.

- A) say something bad to me B) call me Dina

24. It is implied in the passage that _____.

Passage Two

Questions 26 to 30 are based on the following passage.

Deaths from cigarettes are likely to more than triple over the next quarter century to 20 every minute around the world, scientists warn in a new global survey. The survey covers 45 countries, 15 more than the previous study. The additional nations are from eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union.

Sixty million deaths have been caused by smoking since the 1950s, the investigators estimate. They predict smoking will kill about 10 million people a year by 2020, the vast majority in developing countries where the habit continues to attract young women.

Investigators were unable to acquire smoking statistics from every country, which would allow the most precise estimates. Instead, they compared data on lung-cancer death rates among American non-smokers to the lung-cancer death rate in each country to get an estimate of the number of smoking in a nation.

The researchers said they used lung-cancer rates as the yardstick (标尺) because in developed countries, lung cancer is closely related to smoking and so seldom caused by any other factor among non-smokers.

According to the report, 10 percent of middle-age British men will die from smoking by the time they are 35 to 69 years old. In Poland, 20 percent of men are doomed to die from smoking, the researchers predict.

26. It can be inferred from the passage that now the deaths from cigarettes every minute are most close to _____.

- A) 6
- B) 7
- C) 8
- D) 9

Passage Three

Questions 31 to 35 are based on the following passage.

Man's first real invention, and one of the most important inventions in history, was the wheel. All transportation and every machine in the world depend on it.

The wheel is the simplest yet perhaps the most remarkable of all inventions, because there are no wheels in nature --- no living thing was ever created with wheels. How, then, did man come to invent the wheel?

Perhaps some early hunters found that they could roll the dead body of a heavy animal through the forest on logs more easily than they could carry it. However, the logs themselves weighed a lot.

It must have taken a great prehistoric thinker to imagine two thin slices of log connected at their

Passage Four

Questions 36 to 40 are based on the following passage.

The field of medicine has always attracted its share of quacks (庸医). The reasons why quackery thrives even in modern times are not hard to find. To begin with, pain seems to be a chronic human condition. A person who suffers from some illness for a long time will pay any amount of money for the promise of relief. Second, even the best medical treatment cannot cure all the ills. Third, many people lack the training necessary to evaluate medical claims. However, most remedies sold by quacks are not only useless, but often can be harmful to the user as well. By far the most potent reason that quack medicines still are sold around the world has to do with the power of "mind over matter". Your brain is the master organ of your body: It regulates all the chemical processes that keep you alive and well. When you become depressed and lose hope, your autonomic nervous system (植物神经系统) slows down these bodily processes and retards your chances of getting well. When you have hope and faith, these processes are sped up. You are thus likely to recover even from the most dreadful diseases.

The doctor who can convince the patients of their recovery cures more patients than the one whose behavior causes patients to lose faith in themselves. If a patient mistakenly believes that his condition can be cured by taking a drug of some kind, most physicians are happy to give him a placebo. The placebo does no harm at all, but it may so help the patient psychologically that the person's pain diminishes and the patient may actually recover much faster than without taking the pill. Indeed, placebos may even have a physiological effect.

36. All of the following are reasons why quacks continue to do business Except that _____.
- A) people who are in pain will often pay any amount of money for the promise of relief
 - B) the average person is not trained to evaluate medical claims and diagnoses
 - C) although their remedies may not cure a disease, quacks nevertheless do not harm their patients.
 - D) Quacks convince patients that they can help them
37. What does the word "chronic" (L. 3) mean?
- A) painful.
 - B) minor.
 - C) persistent.
 - D) infectious.
38. The effect of becoming depressed about an illness is _____.
- A) a slowing of the body's curative processes
 - B) a collapse of the autonomic nervous system
 - C) an emotional state that ranges from extremes of depression to happiness
 - D) an evident and gradual decrease in the physical symptoms of the disease
39. Doctors who prescribe placebos are _____.
- A) risking harm to their patients
 - B) prolonging their patients' agonies
 - C) curing over 50percent of serious diseases
 - D) helping their patients psychologically
40. What conclusion can be logically drawn from the selection?
- A) Only poorly educated people seek the advice of quacks.
 - B) Quacks are motivated by the desire to help mankind.
 - C) A person's brain cannot control the body's pain-tolerance level.
 - D) The human brain is a powerful and mysterious organ.
